If "Yes," describe these new services on Schedule O.

3 Did the organization cease conducting, or make significant changes in how it conducts, any program services? ☐ Yes ☒ No

If "Yes," describe these changes on Schedule O.

4 Describe the organization's program service accomplishments for each of its three largest program services, as measured by expenses. Section 501(c)(3) and 501(c)(4) organizations are required to report the amount of grants and allocations to others, the total expenses, and revenue, if any, for each program service reported.4a (Code:) (Expenses $ 8,029,807 including grants of $ 74,573) (Revenue $ 0)

Wildlife Crime: The illegal trade in live animals and animal products is among the most inhumane and detrimental threats to their survival. Wildlife species - many of which are already threatened by economic development activities and climate change - are increasingly victims of illegal wildlife trade. The world's COVID-19 crisis put added pressure on wildlife. The simple presence of people helps keep poachers away, so when tourists vanished due to lockdowns and travel restrictions, animals in many parks and protected areas were at increased risk. Meanwhile, many frontline rangers saw their wages cut or eliminated due to the lack of tourist revenue. In the places where IFAW works, we stepped in to help. We made sure rangers were paid, supported, and able to do their work. And that was just one aspect of our actions to reduce wildlife crime in fiscal year 2020. IFAW's Wildlife Crime Program takes a multi-faceted approach. We support capacity building for law enforcers and we strongly believe that change at an international and national policy level is key to tackling wildlife crime. IFAW continues to be a pioneer disrupting online trade in wildlife. IFAW's Wildlife Crime Program is also committed to reducing public demand for illegal wildlife and wildlife products through public awareness

4b (Code:) (Expenses $ 5,992,856 including grants of $ 1,921,741) (Revenue $ 0)

Wildlife Rescue: Following the outbreak of COVID-19, IFAW's Wildlife Rescue program implemented adaptive measures to protect staff and continue our rescue, rehabilitation, and release work. As global lockdowns rolled out across the world and borders closed, IFAW worked with local partners to ensure animals at their facilities received care and staff had access to essential safety equipment in order to continue operations. Beginning in March 2020, all three of IFAW's Animal Rescue programs received an influx of support requests from projects and organizations around the world. As a part of our COVID-19 response strategy, the teams prioritized grant requests for biosecurity, sanitation, and operational support. Grant funds were used to purchase personal protective equipment, sanitation stations, and to support bio security measures, animal care, and veterinary staffing costs. IFAW's in-house expertise and quick mobilization ensured rapid protection for our staff and frontline rescue teams. In total, we were able to protect and care for people and animals in 15 countries at 27 partner project sites.

4c (Code:) (Expenses $ 3,985,449 including grants of $ 1,753,226) (Revenue $ 0)

Landscape Conservation: Despite the extraordinary impact of COVID-19, IFAW was able to continue to support essential landscape conservation in fiscal year 20, forge new partnerships and address challenges in a holistic way. This year we once again achieved noteworthy success in the priority landscapes where we work across Africa and Asia. We remain committed to working with governments, local communities, and other stakeholders to ensure connected conservation networks become a reality that provide wildlife, particularly keystone species like elephants, with the space they need to survive and thrive. This year IFAW-supported rangers recovered 2,498 kilograms of elephant ivory and arrested 1,289 poachers. Plus, IFAW-supported efforts added another 350 square kilometers of habitat to Manas National Park in India. We continue to link conservation and community livelihoods through substantive community engagement and participation. This year we supported livelihood diversification activities that resulted in US$278,000 in direct income for communities in Malawi, Zambia, and Kenya. We supported training for 289 people with skills like tailoring, brickmaking, construction, and beekeeping in the places where we work, including China and India.

	Marine Conservation: Life in the sea is under threat. As many as 1 million species live in our oceans, and many of them are in danger. IFAW works to protect whales and other marine species from threats including entanglements in fishing gear, collisions with high-speed ships, ocean noise pollution, commercial whaling, marine plastics and the impacts of climate change. Whether promoting alternative practices or lobbying for stronger laws, we focus on solutions that enable animals and people to thrive together. Known by Yankee whalers as the "right" whale to hunt, by the 20th century the North Atlantic right whale had been almost completely annihilated. Today, the species is one of the most endangered on the planet, with fewer than 400 individuals remaining, largely due to entanglement in commercial fishing gear and collisions with high-speed vessels. Through extensive advocacy efforts in the United States and Canada, grassroots campaigning and media outreach initiatives, IFAW is at the forefront of the effort to engage government officials, the fishing and shipping industries and other stakeholders to take immediate action to protect the right whale and proactively preserve their habitat. Disaster Response: As disasters around the world increase in intensity and frequency, IFAW's Disaster Response and Risk Reduction team is ready to help by deploying to the hardest-hit communities to rescue animals and support local animal guardians and authorities throughout the crisis. In fiscal year 20, IFAW's Disaster Response and Risk Reduction team rescued 50,639 animals. The Disaster Response team crafted a "Go/No-Go" deployment guide to ensure our team and trained responders could evaluate and deploy safely to disaster zones during the COVID-19 crisis. Our greatest impact often comes after the disaster strikes, when we work with local stakeholders to evaluate a community's risk and to address threats through strategic planning and building local capacity to prepare for and respond to the next disaster. During the first few months after Hurricane Dorian hit the Bahamas, IFAW immediately deployed trained responders and provided over 5,000 animals with direct care and over 113,000 kilograms of supplies including food, veterinary supplies, and humanitarian aid. Since then, we continue to work closely with our partners and the Bahamian government to implement a successful, long-term, comprehensive emergency management plan for the islands. Marine Mammal Rescue and Research: For the last 22 years, IFAW's Marine Mammal Rescue Program has embraced the highest tenets of animal welfare and research science for marine mammal strandings. Our team is one of the most respected marine mammal stranding response programs in the world. With over 5,500 responses to date, we know that every hotline call is not only an opportunity to provide aid to an animal in distress, but also a chance to advance our knowledge about marine life and how to help these animals thrive. In fiscal year 20, the team responded to 257 reports of stranded marine mammals. This includes responses to 34 live small aquatic mammals (small cetaceans, including small whales, dolphins and porpoises), 21 of which were treated and released back to wild. In addition to our hands-on rescue and research work, IFAW's Marine Mammal Rescue team trains other response teams, increasing the welfare, treatment, and veterinary care of stranded marine mammals around the world. We also engage and train passionate members of local communities to support rescue efforts as volunteer responders. It's a testament to what can be achieved for animals when we work together with the people living closest to them. International Policy: At IFAW, when we talk about secure habitats for the places animals call home, we mean more than just security on the ground. We cannot be sure these habitats and species will be safeguarded over time unless both are adequately protected in law and policies. That's why IFAW engages so actively in advocacy work, both nationally and internationally. IFAW has long participated in the workings of multilateral environmental agreements (MEAs) to ensure their decisions are in the best interests of the world's wildlife. The impact of the global pandemic in fiscal year 2020 has meant that many	6,737,116	1,262,173	6,354

of these meetings are taking place virtually or are postponed. However, despite these challenges, IFAW's vital international policy work continues; lending our expertise in supporting partners, governments, and other decision-makers to implement agreed work and continuing to advocate positive change for some of our most vulnerable species.
