

DECISION TREE / CONFISCATED SPECIES

Northern Muriqui (Brachyteles hypoxanthus) CR
© Russell A. Mittermeier.

Does the species have a conservation value?

No (be mindful of allocation of limited resources) | Yes | Unsure

Seek advice from IUCN Species Survival Commission

2. TRANSLOCATION
Release to IUCN Reintroduction and other translocation Guidelines

Yes

Should it be released?
Follow the IUCN Reintroduction and other translocation Guidelines

No

Lifetime care, contribution to conservation through ex-situ management. Refer to IUCN Guidelines for the Use of Ex-Situ Management of Species

Are there appropriate facilities to give lifetime care in country?

Yes

Is it in an international conservation breeding programme?

No

Are you sure?

Can it be repatriated?

Quarantine/holding until completion of paperwork

Yes

No; n/a

Follow IUCN Guidelines for the Management of Confiscated, Live Organisms
<https://doi.org/10.2305/IUCN.CH.2019.03.en>

1. REPATRIATION
Return to the country of origin to an authorised organisation and/or 'approved' facility i.e. those set up to cover for confiscations under CITES

Red-bellied Parrot (Poicephalus rufiventris) LC
© Kira Mileham.

4. HUMANE KILLING/DESTRUCTION
Consult Guidelines, eg. AVMA

3. LONG-TERM CAPTIVE CARE
Refer to WAZA Animal Welfare Strategy

Threatened species – keep looking for resources

Available

Non-Threatened species

Unavailable

Look for support from species conservation and welfare organisations

Yes